Quick trivia question - Name two initiatives in the Charleston community that did not exist last summer (hint: they were both launched by the Digital Corridor)?
Answer - The Flagship and Charleston Works™.

The Flagship
On June 1, 2010, the Flagship, Charleston’s premier co-working facility, celebrated its first anniversary. Since this downtown Charleston facility opened, current resident companies and Flagship graduates have raised $14.1 million, created $5 million in payroll and added 45 jobs to Charleston’s knowledge economy. Additionally, the facility is now home to the Flagship Gallery, a cool place to support and promote Charleston's visual artists.

Talent Acquisition
Of 171 companies currently in the CharlestonWorks™ portal, 73 (43%) companies are hiring! With this in mind, the Digital Corridor is strengthening its commitment to assist knowledge-based employers with their recruitment efforts with the development of CharlestonWorks™.

This new initiative assists employers with their hiring needs by serving as the gateway for employment resources in Charleston's knowledge economy, while generating awareness among the highly skilled, technical professionals about the many knowledge-based companies in Charleston. Contact Ernest Andrade to learn more about this new initiative.

iFive:K
The 4th Annual iFive:K was a tremendous success! 2010 was once again a record-setting year, with a new course record at 15:34 and race participation at 640 runners and walkers. The Digital Corridor and education partner, ECPI, presented five scholarships to Burke High School seniors seeking higher education in a technology field. Thanks to all our race sponsors and volunteers who made this premium race successful.

We are excited to soon announce our first ever Title Sponsor for the 2011 i5k scheduled for April 21st. Stay tuned!

Mark Your Calendars
The 7th Annual Corridor Bash happens October 14th, 2010 from 5:30-8:00pm at the Charleston Maritime Center. You won't want to miss this casual gathering of technology professionals on the Charleston Harbor. Not too early to contact Amy Lawrence if you are interested in attending.

NEW MEMBER COMPANIES
The Charleston Digital Corridor is pleased to welcome three new member companies to our knowledge-based community, one of which is operating at the Flagship.
